STATEMENT REGARDING SYDNEY AND NSW TRAINS PROTECTED ACTION BALLOT

Despite media reports on TV news this evening, the RTBU would like to confirm that the results of the protected action ballot are yet to be received from the Australian Electoral Commission.

We are expecting to receive the results of the ballot late Friday afternoon.

It is important to note that the results of this ballot, if successful, will mean that workers will have the option of taking protected industrial action, but it's important to stress that at this stage, no action is being undertaken.

Workers are required to give adequate notice of any industrial action planned, should the ballot be successful.
